Beyond the bucket list

Some places stay on your wish list. Here is what makes them worth the journey.

Patagonia

Perito Moreno’s blue ice walls reach almost 200 feet high, with glacier viewpoints and boat journeys offering a close look. Further north, Patagonia’s lake districts feel quite different: forests, clear lakes and waterfront towns around Bariloche in Argentina and Puerto Varas in Chile. Explore further with Buenos Aires and Mendoza’s wine country, or Chile’s Atacama Desert and Easter Island. We’ll help you choose a route worth taking your time over.

Japan

Tokyo and Kyoto are wonderful starting points. Go further by bullet train and local rail: Hiroshima and nearby Miyajima, Naoshima’s art museums, or the hot springs of Hakone and the coastal scenery of the Izu Peninsula southwest of Tokyo. Stay in a ryokan, discover small neighborhood restaurants and meet local guides who bring the food, crafts and history to life. We’ll help you connect the places that interest you most.

Rwanda & safari

Meet mountain gorillas in Rwanda’s forest, then exchange the green hills for the open plains of Kenya or Tanzania. Think wildlife-filled game drives, a welcoming safari camp and dinner under the stars. Finish, perhaps, with warm water and beach time in Zanzibar. We will plan the permits, flights and camps, bringing together the experiences that matter most to you.

Bhutan

A small Buddhist kingdom in the Himalayas, where prayer flags cross mountain passes and monasteries overlook green valleys. With your guide, you might light a butter lamp, hear monks at prayer or share tea and learn about daily life. Add forest walks and beautiful lodges with valley views. Give Bhutan time: its quieter encounters can be as memorable as its famous monasteries.

Peru

Reach Machu Picchu by scenic train or on a guided Inca Trail hike. Explore Cusco and the Sacred Valley, allowing time to acclimatize before higher-altitude adventures such as Rainbow Mountain. There’s more: colorful markets, excellent food, pisco sours and the wildlife of the Amazon, explored from a lodge or river cruise. We’ll help you choose what belongs in your trip, with time to enjoy it.

India

India is an assault on the senses: spice-filled markets, bright textiles, temple bells and something delicious cooking nearby. See the Taj Mahal, then explore Rajasthan’s stepwells and Ranakpur’s intricately carved Jain temple. Look for tigers in Kanha or Bandhavgarh, travel through Munnar’s tea plantations, or slow down on Kerala’s backwaters. Our local guides bring food and daily life into the journey, with heritage hotels and quieter stays between the adventures.
